

Learning outcome and assignment

Attending this intensive course will give you the opportunity to develop your international competences and of course build your international network. By the end of the programme you will have collected knowledge about the complexity of diversity and inclusiveness. In addition, you will have experienced working together with other students from different countries, as well as citizens of Rotterdam. Finally, you will have enhanced your skills in intercultural communication.

Description learning outcome

As a future health professional you open up to perspectives of others by becoming aware of assumptions. You contribute to inclusiveness in a diverse city.

Indicators

1. You assess the impact of your own and others assumptions to become aware of the complexity of diversity.
2. You open up to perspectives of persons with different backgrounds through intercultural sensitivity and by using intercultural communication skills.
3. You develop ideas to promote an inclusive city for specific target groups.
4. You share knowledge and experiences with other (future) health professionals about diversity and inclusion.

Assignment of the learning outcome and the operationalised indicators consist of a group assessment, peer assessment and an individual assessment.

Source

No worries. This is Rotterdam. Living together in a city where everyone's a minority. Integration & the Community Action Programme 2019 – 2022